The "Tannhauser" overture, of Gien Head; George H. Raymond. Manison Square Garden Amphitheatre last night. The "Tannhauger" overture, the dainty intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana, Sullivan's "Lost Chord," with Mr. Selflerth and his cornet in evidence, and Tschalkowsky's "Chinese Dance," were beautifully interpreted. Many alterations had been made in the amphitheatre, which was cooled by a big, murmurous fountain. MADISON SQUARE ROOF GARDEN.

MADISON SQUARE ROOF GARDEN,
The Madison Square Roof Garden was not forgotten last night. A big audience sat there and captured any stray breeze that happened to be floating over the city. The programme was a long one, and it seemed to afford much amusement. Among those who appeared were Belic Black, Horace Randall, Ruby Brooks, whose admirable banjo work was as enjoyable as ever; Frl. von Baegger, the Misses Villars and Dacre,
Frank Lawton and Charles Guyer.

GRAND OPERA-HOUSE. GRAND OPERA-HOUSE.

The Hinrichs grand opera company sang "Rigoletto" last night at the Grand Opera-House, and pleased a tolerably large audience. The singers were Mme. Louise Natali, Mme. Lizzle MacNichol-Vetta, A. Montegriffo, Sig. Campanini and W. H. Clarke. The chorus was exceedingly good, and the stage sculings were decidedly better than those generally used in the presentation of English grand opera. "Faust" will be sung to-night.

COLUMBUS THEATRE.

COLUMBUS THEATRE.

Harlem had to rely upon the Columbus Theatre for entertainment last night, as the Harlem Opera-House has closed its season. The play was "Held in Slavery," a very energetic effort, which, however, appeared to go very well with the galiery. It is full of incidents of a somewhat heroic nature, and it was fairly acted. The principal members of the cast were Miss Boyle and Martin Hayden, "Held in Slavery" was well staged. IMPERIAL MUSIC HALL.

IMPERIAL MUSIC HALL.

Miss Lottie Gilson worked very industriously at the Imperial Music Hall last night. She sang a number of songs in her usual inimitable manner. Mile. Rosa Pompon contributed several French dittles, and was interestingly contrasted with Miss Gilson. Other performers were Whittey and Leonard, who are always amusing; J. W. Myers, Blockson and Burns, Katle Rooney, White and Granger, Fellx and Claxton and the Salambos.

FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

Miss Adele Ritchie sang the role of Priscilla in "The Isle of Champagne" at the Fifth Avenue Theatre last night. She has a powerful voice and a very agreeable stage presence, and may be said to have met with instantaneous success. The comic opera went very well indeed, and there was an exceedingly large audience. Mr. Scabrooke was very funny, and the warm weather seemed to have no depressing effect upon his interpretation.

PROCTOR'S THEATRE.

Glimore's Band played an admirable selection of classical and popular music at Proctor's Theatre yesterday. This engagement will undoubtedly prove to engagement will undoubtedly prove to engagement will undoubtedly prove to the compagnet. FIFTH AVENUE THEATRE.

TONY PASTOR'S.

If half the theatres in New York gave a vaudeville performance, and the other half sporied roof gardens. Tony Pastor would still be undisturbed. He has his regular patrons, who, like Micawber, will never desert him, and his performances are consistently good. Last night a capital entertainment was provided by J. W. Kelly, Lily Burnand, John E. Drew, the Gienroy brothers, Binns and Burnas, David Foy, Van Leer and Barton, Matthews and Harris, the two Emeralds and C. W. Williams.

The Summer season began at Koster & Bial's Concert Hall last night. It began everywhere with a vengeance, but Koster & Bial called attention to the fact, and wish to have it recorded. We should have known it anyway by our poor perspiring brows. Ameng the features of the programme were Dufour and Hartley, who will renew their popularity here; Miss Ada Lundberg, the Borani brothers, Miss Dorothy Denning, Mario and Dunham, and Juanita Bardoux.

HUBER'S MUSEUM.

There was the usual array of varied attractions at Huber's Museum in East Fourteenth street, yesterday. The Kansas glant looked as imposing as ever, and he appeared to be exceedingly comfortable, considering the fact that we were having a very decided touch of Summer weather. The convention of fat women claimed attention, and so did a troupe of performing Sibertan wolves. The attendance during the day was large.

ment Company was held in the big amphitheatre. And they really weren't needed, either, aithough Mayor Haynes some months ago declared he wouldn't permit a sparring show in his city if he had to marshal the militia and lead them to Caledonian Park himself. Since that time, however, some gentle influence has come over the Mayor, and he apparently has been convinced that sparring exhibitions for points are really healthful exercises, and not at all calculated to demoralize the participants or the spectators. Four bouts were listed on the tators. Four bouts were listed on the programms last night, and in one of them only was there presented sufficient ciever work to repay the big delegation of New York sports for the fatiguing journey they made from the metropolis on such a melting night. That bout was between Joe Walcott, the dumpy little colored man and slashing hitter of the George Dixon combination.
